THE LAW ENFORCEMENT
TORCH RUN BENEFITS
SPECIAL OLYMPICS ATHLETES

Special Olympics

Torch Run officers volunteer their time and efforts to raise the funds used to provide Special Olympics athletes with equipment, uniforms, training facilities, housing and meals at local, area and state-level competitions. The funds are also used to recruit, train and certify more than 5,000 volunteer coaches statewide. Due to Torch Run support and other successful fundraising efforts, Special Olympics athletes are never charged a fee to participate.

The Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics is the largest grass-roots fundraiser and public awareness program for the Special Olympics movement. More than 85,000 law enforcement officers in 35 nations support children and adults with intellectual disabilities through their Torch Run efforts.

The North Carolina Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics began in 1987 and has raised nearly $15 million for Special Olympics North Carolina (SONC).
